Jean: some points for your consideration.

You have a great modesty and sense of humility in the presence of Robinson Jeffer's work, which is admirable, but which could work to the detriment of the book.

A book is a syllogism.

Robinson Jeffers poem, plus Jean Kellog's etchings, equals a separate entity, a BOOK. This book has its own life, drawing heavily on the poem and on the etchings, but nevertheless it must have its own style and dignity and sense of being.

This will be a different book than I have ever done. My approach to book design is that each book demands a consideration and a treatment based on what the book IS and what it is supposed to do.

In my concept, this book should be cool, classical in the sense that Greek temples are classical, for both the poem and the etchings have a timelessness about them.

In bringing this about, I must work with the simplest means....paper, type and space relationships...nothing else.

If you will look at my 86 books, you cannot say that they are obviously related, because they differ widely in concept and form. But they are related, and people of discernment can usually tell a Merle Armitage book. Why? Because they sense the fact that a certain style develops from the fact that I seek the meaning of the book as my guide.

I will never insist on doing anything in our book of which you cannot approve. But I will ask you to step aside for a moment, and if you can, forget your modesty, your admiration for Jeffers, and remember that the person who will want this book will not be concerned with those human qualities, but with how well we have preserved the integrity of Jeffers, of Kellogg and of the book as a BOOK.

Merle

Dear Miss Kellogg:

I received from the Stevens-Nelson. Co.
a pkg containing 335 Sheets of Heavy White Rivers
Paper cut to size for the Printing of your Poems
Plates

Yours Sincerely
Charles S. White

October 13th 1954

Dear Miss Kellogg:

I am sending to you by Post today proofs from each of your two plates. You will note that I have cleaned the spots and scratches and re-stepped the plates and also corrected the printing of the Indian plate. Re. the laying of ^{water} on the bed of press to keep the margins clean. This would not be practical as the dry sheet would have a tendency to buckle and crease the wet-print. You may be sure that the printed job will be given every care as to printing and cleanliness.

As this work will be slow in completing could you send me an advance payment on account

Yours Sincerely
Charles S. White

P.S. I now have the nude plate in work

Miss Jean Kellogg

Rte 1 Box 141

Carmel - Calif.

My Dear Miss Kellogg,

It is with profound regret that I write this letter at the request of my husband - Charles White, your printer. He suffered a heart attack in October, we had hoped he might recover sufficiently to carry on at a slower pace, but the picture looks very grim at present, seems to be completely incapacitated. All his other work has been returned, there is just your work left here, which consists of three (3) plates, your paper, and about (100) hundred prints of the first plate. (Nude Girl)

We see no other solution but to close the plant or shop for good, which will take about a month. I will await your suggestion about the disposition of your material. Charles feels deeply concerned about the shock and disappointment this will cause you, what can he do when he feels so helpless. Your letter of
Nov. 20 was in box this morning

Sincerely
939 Eighth Ave. Ella D White

Dear Miss Kellogg.

Sorry to be so long answering your letter, your card was in the mail box for a whole week, before we went down to the shop. Regarding the "paper clips", my husband used old playing cards or pieces of heavy card board like sample enclosed. (Old Christmas card stock).
Up to the present he has not been able to get the ink, oil and etc ready to send.
Intends to send you some of his heavy blanket too. We have oceans of that board if you want some. Dismantling that shop is a heart breaking ordeal for all of us.
As I see the picture we shall be there through January, we have barely made a dent in sending out those hundreds of plates.
Sincerely Ella D. White

ART COLLABORATION

Etching Joins Poetry

Within the past weeks a truly monumental work of art has appeared from the press of Random House, a collaboration between two of the Peninsula's brightest stars, one in the field of literature, the other in graphic arts and painting.

This is a limited edition (115 copies) of "The Loving Shepherdess" by Robinson Jeffers, renowned poet of Carmel Point, with nine etchings by Jean Kellogg, Carmel Highlands artist.

The handsome volume, its pages measuring 8½ inches by 13, has been designed by Merle Armitage, printed by the Ward Ritchie Press with handset (Bembo) type on handmade French rag (Rives) paper, bound by the Silverlake Bindery of Los Angeles and signed by the author and etcher.

As do all satisfying works of art, the book has grown slowly to its completion, with etcher, designer and printer working with a singular devotion to make an entity, a "syllogism" of poem, etchings and format. In this, they are practically pioneers on the American scene, although the idea of combining graphic and literary artistry in a single publication has long been practiced in Europe, especially in France, where Vollard often commissioned artists to create illustrations for great works.

Jean Kellogg has long cherished the wish to illustrate a poem by Robinson Jeffers, an idea inspired by a very lovely volume in her possession, "The Eclogues of Virgil" in English version by Samuel Palmer, published in 1883, with illustrations by the author.

Original in Style

"The Loving Shepherdess," however, has drawn upon none of its European predecessors for the style of its format. In the words of its eminent designer, Merle Armitage, in embarking on the work:

"Robinson Jeffers' poem plus Jean Kellogg's etchings equals a separate entity, a book. This book has its own life, drawing heavily on the poem and the etchings, but nevertheless it must have its own style and dignity and sense of being. In my concept this book should be cool, classical in the sense that great temples are classical, for both the poem and the etchings have a timelessness about them. In bringing this about, I must work with the simplest means, paper, type and space relationships—nothing else."

In selecting "The Loving Shepherdess" from among other poems by Jeffers, Miss Kellogg "felt the challenge of a finished work of art." The poem was first published in book form together with the author's "Dear Judas" in 1929. While "The Loving Shepherdess" is a long poem, it can be characterized as a lyric version of Jeffers' great dramatic epics, unique among his works.

Scenes of Coast

Miss Kellogg's choice was further influenced by the fact that the poem tells a poignant story, closely knit, in simple progression with one or two main characters and a sequence of related scenes of the coast, coming up from Big Sur—scenes which the artist knew and loved.

The idea for the present volume began to take shape a number of years ago when the artist's friend, Edward Weston, brought her together with Merle Armitage. Together they sought the collaboration of Ward Ritchie, one of this country's most eminent printers. Ritchie began his career in Paris and coincidentally, he had chosen for his first opportunity to demonstrate his printing skill Robinson Jeffers' "Apology for Bad Dreams." He has always been a great admirer of the poet, and more recently published the "Diary of Una Jeffers."

A printer of pure taste and high technical excellence, he wanted nothing archaic in type for "The Loving Shepherdess."

Through Edward Weston again, Miss Kellogg found Dorothy Weston to pose for the figure studies, and her drawings of the sheep were made from the flock of the late Noel Sullivan.

In 1954 she went to New York to find a printer for her completed etchings and was successful in finding one of the few remaining printers of the classical school. However, after making the first few—some 200—her valuable ally succumbed to a sudden heart attack.

The artist decided to make her own prints, and was supplied generously by the printer's widow with some of his materials. She had meanwhile learned much from his work, especially how to dry the prints in order to keep the relief on each.

Miss Kellogg was fortunate, too, in finding in her immediate neighborhood at Carmel Highlands an invaluable helper of sensitivity and ability, Mrs. Lucille Andrews, who assisted her over a long period in placing the paper in the press, a task requiring an expert touch.

In her nine etchings, Miss Kellogg has "tried to keep a linear style in harmony with the type, with the exception of the darks essential to the meaning of the poem and to the addition of variety to the book." The titles of the etchings, contrary to usual custom, but with an added touch of artistry in the format, have been placed at the end of the book. In themselves, they tell the essence of the story:

Titles of Etchings

"... like a sleepwalker on the ridge of his inner necessity;" "And wept on the shore, her hands clasping her ankles . . .;" "You love all creatures alike;" "Again and again death struck . . .;" "... her face and his own were planets to the lantern sun . . .;" "The high dark heads of Indian migrations, going south . . .;" "He'd found a stone on the other side of the fire . . .;" "I am he whom I have sought;" "... she called the sheep about her and perceived that none came."

"A Note on the Artist and the Etchings" has been included by Merle Armitage in the volume, as follows:

"Jean Kellogg is the daughter of the distinguished Vernon and Charlotte Kellogg. At various times she has studied at the Yale School of Fine Arts and the Art Students League, and has worked with Dougherty, Kuniyoshi and Leger. Exhibitions of her work have been held at the Ferargil Gallery in New York, the Alexander Rabow Gallery in San Francisco, and she has exhibited at the Brooklyn Museum and the Phillips Memorial Gallery in Washington, among others.

"She is represented in the San Francisco Museum of Art, the Duncan Phillips Memorial Gallery in Washington and many private collections. Her honors include the Phelan Award and Medals of the Society of Beaux Arts Architects.

In Great Tradition

"As an artist, Jean Kellogg is in the great tradition. Her work relates directly to the rich line which includes Vesalius, Michelangelo, da Vinci, Pollajuolo, Rembrandt, Delacroix, Daumier and others whose unique contributions to western culture are their timeless qualities. Influenced also by the calligraphic character of the Chinese, her work possesses that 'less' which indubitably makes 'more'.

"Jean Kellogg's approach has not been to illustrate a poem but to supply the acuity of another medium to the powerful esthetic expression achieved by language. The nine etchings she has created for 'The Loving Shepherdess' are extraordinary in their clarity as works of art and as parallels to the poetry. She gives visual form to Robinson Jeffers' psychological landscape.

"As Stravinsky mastered the art of conducting so that he might give the fullest scope to his intentions as a composer, Jean Kellogg has mastered the art of printing etchings to produce prints of the utmost brilliancy and quality. Combining this poem and these nine original etchings gives the book a near perfect example of what Santayana terms 'objectified pleasure'. Seldom is a towering poet so felicitously met with an artist; rarely has a synthesis attained such unity."

Copies of "The Loving Shepherdess" in its present exquisite form have already found their way into the permanent collections of the Yale University library and that of Wellesley, the latter presented by Mrs. Walter Tower of Rancho Rio Vista, Carmel.

Dear Jean:

I am sorry I have delayed so long in thanking you for the copy of the "Loving Shepherdess". I hope to be forgiven...you are perhaps on your way to India by now.

The book is a most impressive work of art in all details. The etchings came out beautifully and exactly as I thought they would when we looked at and discussed them last year. They are so strongly endowed with your own personality that they have an extra quality unusual in this medium where craft alone is so commonly found.

Again I want to apologize for the delay and to thank you for sending me a copy...and to wish you the best of voyages and luck in all you do.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Jean:

It was a very great pleasure to hear from you and to hear of your mother a little bit.

First, I have just called James Babb, Librarian of Yale Univ. He says they have a most extensive Jeffers collection given by Jack Whitney, and Jim ~~he~~ is most enthusiastic about your ~~proposal~~ ^{book}. I could hear his voice pick up immediately that I had told him of your proposal. He wishes that the volume be sent direct to him. This would be:

The brochure was in my hands a week ago. I know what a beautiful work This must be. I am most anxious to see it and shall await its arrival with much anticipation. I wish I could have one, but I shall feel I have, through your thoughtfulness, loyalty, and generosity. I know that Jim Babb appreciates this a very great deal. There was a fine display of Robinson Jeffers in the main hall of the library some time ago.

As for the boys, Deanie is back at Taft in his third year - early for football and sponsoring new boys. He has been a fairly good student, was chairman of his class last year and is a good athlete. People seem to think him a nice boy. I am pleased with him. Bill, 6, started 1st grade last week, is a very happy, friendly little fellow. Both are healthy in mind & body and they are the "apples of my eye". I am busy on my Hopkins murals, portraits, and pictures. The school is still in the hands of the Bayhaus watered down and I am most unpopular with the faculty. In the last 5 years I suppose I have had 12 art students in my classes. They do not want me in their curriculum and turn prospects away from me. Alas! ☹️ But there is to be a new Dean next year, Albers will be through I think, and maybe it will be better later on. Consequence is that I am now really a painter. I hope I have been driving into the essence of the art as time goes by - within the limits of my mental and spiritual endowment. It was good to hear from you. I'll always have a special affection for the Kelloggs - kinder to both of you -

Dear Miss Kellogg,

For some time I have been reading the poetry of Robinson Jeffers and making a collection of the first editions of his work; in the latter project I have had some success, although several of the privately printed items like "The House-Dog's Grave" still elude me. I have also enjoyed teaching courses in Jeffers at the College, where he seems to have appeal for the better students.

Of Jeffers' long poems, "The Loving Shepherdess" has always been my favorite, and I was excited by the news of the new edition. I decided on a copy of the book instead of a new suit, and last week it arrived! It is a beautiful thing indeed, and I want to add my word of praise to the many which must already have come to you for your part of the book.

Your work and the poet's complement and illuminate each other to a degree rarely achieved when writer and artist meet. If I could have but one, I think that it would be Plate 4 near page 38, "Again and again death struck," but they are all fine.

Several years ago I prepared an exhibit of Jeffers first edition, photographs, and the like for our college library, and I hope to have a similar and larger exhibit next year. Can you tell me where I might secure something about you for such an exhibit in connection with "The Loving Shepherdess," for example, a photograph, brochure, etc. If you could help with any suggestions (or materials which you no longer need), I should be most appreciative.

Meanwhile, let me thank you again for what you have done for a great poem and its readers.

Sincerely yours,

Fraser Drew.

I am hoping one day to be able to arrange a sabbatical leave during which I may have a look at the Carvel coast country which you and RT know so well. I feel that I too know it — as well as an outlander may.

Dear Ward:-

My face is red!

I told Mrs. Kellogg a long time ago that I would get in touch with you and find out just how it was with the remainder of these beautiful books which you have printed, Merle has designed and Jean has made so significant by her etchings!

How is it?

Are there any left and if so how many?

To whom~~e~~ and to what institutions have they gone?

I think I wrote Merle asking these questions but I am an old man with a messy memory and I am sorry that I have failed these nice people in not following up.

How is it anyway with the book and with you?

Dear Jean,

A combination of pressures has delayed my writing to thank you for the book. It is a superb job, and your contribution to it is largely responsible for making it so; not only because of the skill and beauty of your etchings, but because of the aid which you have given to readers in visualizing Jeffers' beautiful but sometimes evanescent phrases. I have never read much of any of his writings, and was immensely impressed with his delicacy and perceptiveness, and his finished artistry. Also the complete lack of egotism. The more I have read of so many of our contemporaries the more I have been struck with their excessive pre-occupation with their own dull little selves, and their readiness to try to make up for their lack of artistry by pretending that shoddy workmanship is really better than skill.

As for your etchings, I admired greatly the simplicity of line, and the dexterity with which you made a very few lines suggest a great deal. Yours is a great gift, and you have enhanced it by your devotion to standards of high perfection. May you long continue to turn out such fine work.

When we got back from Pasadena a few months ago we found a card asking us to a showing of the photos of your Eastern journey. We were so sorry not to have been able to get there, and thank you for having thought of us.

Our love to you and your Mother. When next either or both of you are near Big Sur (except on a Thursday) please let us have a glimpse of you. And once more our best thanks for your wonderful gift, and our congratulations on having ~~xxxx~~ done such a splendid job.

Affectionately yours,

Dear Mrs Dickie

September 20, 1967

Thank you for the kind letter. I understand your position on The Loving Shepherdess volume entirely and am grateful that you might make it available. It's up to me now to find the backing so we can acquire it. I've never been in any fund-raising operation but this is clearly what is going to be called for for many of the items.

You suggest you might later consign Rock and Hawk to the collection for safe-keeping. It is such a rare pamphlet that I believe I've only seen one copy. We would be delighted to make some arrangement; we already have something with Horace Lyon for his photographs.

I wish I had had time during the summer to visit your gallery.
You were one of the most enthusiastic in your earlier responses to my inquiries Yet I've never had a chance to meet.

Of course, we extend you the invitation to visit The library

I am hoping that you took interesting for you.

Wish you could have joined our class for its 50th Reunion in 1978. We had a lot of fun and it was surprising how much the same everyone looked. Let's start planning right now to get together in 1983 for our 55th!

You were dear to write me such a nice note in '78 and

I would really love to see you

Dear Jean,

Thank you so very much for your nice letter of March 18 regarding The Holton Challenge. I am sorry that there has been family illness. However, the gift of your book sounds like a wonderful thing for the new library. I am sending your letter on to Mrs. William W. Anderson, The Holton-Arms Alumnae Association, 7303 Rivier Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20034. You may want to write her further about your etchings, and first let me say I am proud of our classmate, the artist.

As a result of my letters, I learned that Stella Phillips Ehrman passed away on December 3, 1980. On March 6 my good friend, Martha

Carter Henson, died of cancer in

I have kept in close touch all these years. We shall miss Martha who always kept us laughing.
Jessie spent a night here on the

Dear Mrs. Dickie

I have had the opportunity, now, to enjoy The Loving Shepherdess you have given to the School. What a treat this volume is, and how grateful we are to have it for our library. To think of an alumna giving such a lovely gift of her own work to the School is to realize how strong the influence of Holton-Arms has been to its alumnae through the years. In a sense, whenever we give to our schools we are giving back some of that which we have taken away and benefitted from in our own lives.

The Loving Shepherdess is a beautiful volume with the writing of Robinson Jeffers highlighted so nicely by your drawings.

Thank you for making this a part of the Holton-Arms collection. We do hope that you will come and see our new library when it is finished early in the Fall. With best personal wishes.

ALMA MATER

*Far into the distant future,
Strong and clear above,
Shines the star of our dear Holton,
Shines the star we love.
It is there to aid and guide us
As the years pass by,
Holding us to all that's finest,
Making standards high.*

*Hail to thee our Holton-Arms,
Alma Mater dear,
You will be our inspiration,
Through each coming year.
Thoughts of you we'll cherish ever
Be we far or nigh,
Weaving in our hearts and lives,
Blue and White for aye.*

Your continued support of The Holton-Arms Alumnae Fund maintains the high standards of academic excellence you remember . . . and assures future generations of young women the same opportunity. We will be happy to see your name among the long list of loyal alumnae listed in our next Annual Report!

A Letter To Friends Of Holton-Arms School:

A new academic year is just beginning. As we eagerly await the months ahead, I would like to reflect on the year just passed.

What an exciting year it was! From the 80th birthday party launching The Holton Challenge to the "It's Academic" Team winning the City Championship and Super Bowl, there was not a dull moment. We are grateful to you for all you have done to continue to make Holton a leader among independent schools.

I am impressed, as I am sure you will be, by the many names listed in this report, showing strength and growth in all areas of our constituency.

While Annual Giving dollar totals are not as high as last year's, the number of donors continues to rise, and we are thrilled to report that pledges and gifts for The Holton Challenge have reached the $2.5 million mark—halfway to our goal! This is especially encouraging to a non-profit institution such as ours that relies so heavily on your tax-deductible gifts.

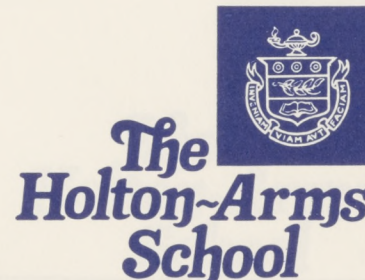

The year has not been without its moments of sadness. We have lost four persons whose lives meant a great deal to the growth of Holton. Trustees Joan Stetson, Stuart Tipton, former Trustees, and past board chairmen Lanier McLachlen and John Hamilton will be sorely missed. John and "Mr. Mac" both played major roles in the important decision to move the school to our River Road campus. Their lives were exemplary ones of the true meaning of "trusteeship"—and indeed will serve as an inspiration to all of us fortunate to have known and worked with them to continue Mrs. Holton's dream.

We will be contacting you for the dedication of our fine new library later this fall. At that time you will see plans for the proposed Performing Arts Center, Art Department renovation, Health and Volunteer Centers.

Producers Circle

Leadership gifts to launch the funding for the proposed Performing Arts Center were received as a result of an authentic Chinese banquet generously hosted by Anna C. Chennault, trustee and parent of two Holton alumnae. Donors of $1,000 to the Performing Arts Center will become members of the Producers Circle, with a plaque in the Center carrying their names. Seats in the auditorium will also bear the names of individual Producers Circle members. Mrs. Gerald F. Ford was guest of honor for this very special evening.

The Headmaster's Report to the Board of Trustees

JUNE 10, 1981

In the National Merit Scholarship competition, five students received Letters of Commendation, five students were finalists, and there were five winners of National Merit Scholarships. In addition, one student was recognized by the National Merit Program for Black Students.

The entire school gathered for Class Day, June 3rd, to honor leadership and recognize the fine contributions and performances by students and by groups, especially in the Middle and Upper Schools. The Door Prize for activities attendance and spirit was awarded to the Freshman Class—the Class of 1984, which class has also been responsible for major support through its pumpkin sales to the Holton Challenge. A number of students in the Senior Class were recognized by Boosters for their outstanding contributions and service to Boosters and to Holton for overall school leadership. Boosters presented to the school a check to be used for the purchase of bulbs to be planted around the new library.

Of the large number of students who participated in the National Classical League Latin Contest, three received gold medals and thirteen received silver medals for their outstanding performance. Again this year, students participated in the American Association of Teachers of French Contest. Eight students placed from first to seventh locally, regionally, and nationally. In addition, seventeen girls received commendations—Tres Honorable—Maxima Cum Laude. A number of students participated again this year in local American Association of Spanish Teachers Contest. Two students received second place, one student received a first place, and two students received an honorable mention for their excellence. In addition, two girls received a Distinguido Certificate, which is the equivalent to Maxima Cum Laude. In a contest sponsored by the Mathematics Association of America, one student placed first, one student placed second, and two students were tied for third place. In addition, Middle School students participated in the seventh and eighth grade contests sponsored by the Maryland Mathematics League. Holton's seventh grade team placed fifteenth in the State competition. The eighth grade team placed fourteenth in State competition. One eighth grader, who headed the team, was also honored as the eighteenth high individual among eighth graders in the State of Maryland. In the 1981 Science Writing Contest under the auspices of the Washington Chapter of the Society for Technical Communications, two students received Honorable Mention for their fine reports. In addition to the awards already mentioned, Rennselaer Polytechnic Institute, Howard University, and Yale University continue to present awards to the school for outstanding performance in several fields. Several friends have joined together to present a new award in dance to the school in honor of former dance teacher, and all-around assistant in the school, Mary Happer.

Also recognized at the time of both Class Day and Commencement was our "It's Academic" team, who in late Fall and continuing through May, defeated each opponent in the Washington area, to become the Washington area champions.

As we conclude another year, I must express my gratefulness for the opportunity to be a part of Holton-Arms. This appreciation is shared by the entire school staff, for we recognize the hard work by trustees and the committees that work behind the scenes in so many ways to make our work possible. Your support of our faculty compensation program and fringe benefits opportunities has made a great difference.

Susan and I look back on our twelve years as a part of Holton-Arms with delight and a feeling of accomplishment, and we look forward to the new year with great anticipation.

Dear Mrs. Dickie,

Two days ago the Robinson Jeffers Newsletter came from California, and I read it with my usual enthusiasm and my usual unfair resentment of the fact that all Jeffers-activity takes place far away on the Pacific Coast. One of my few regrets at seventy-five is that I have confined myself to the space bounded by Jackson, Wyoming; Havana, Cuba; Quebec City, and the British Isles, with most of my time in Vermont, New York State and Ireland. Imagine missing the Big Sur, San Francisco and all the Orient; Buenos Aires, Tierra del Fuego and Macchu Picchu; Paris, Greece and all Italy!

More than thirty years ago I wrote to you from Buffalo, where I was teaching graduate and undergraduate courses in which we read the poetry of Yeats, Housman, Jeffers and Frost. I wanted to mount an exhibit in the college library, and one of the featured items was to be The Loving Shepherdess, of which I had just acquired Copy No. 92 at some cost to my budget. I wanted to show photographs of both etcher and poet. You were in India at the time, but your mother wrote to me most graciously and I later had a card and two letters from you. A large black and white photograph of you in your studio enhanced my exhibit.

After reading your lecture in the News letter, I took down The Loving Shepherdess again. It is still one of my favorite books. Your lecture has already had a second and more thoughtful reading, and I am grateful for it. If I knew more of Léger and Marin, I would be a better reader of it. I found the conclusion exciting and satisfying.

In 1983 I was forced to retire from teaching by state-wide university regulations. I still miss the classroom but enjoy the leisure for reading, writing and walking. I have a good house at the end of a winding road in rough, heavily wooded, Vermont-like country five miles west of the small city of Lockport near Lake Ontario. I am sure that your work keeps you busy and happy, along with recollections of the remarkable people and places in your life.

With grateful good wishes,

Fraser Drew

Dear Dr. Radice,

YES, I WILL HELP LAUNCH THE EXCITING LIBRARY OUTREACH CAMPAIGN!

I agree that women are still woefully neglected in the scholarly studies of art -- and that art reference books still perpetuate the myth that great art is created by men.

And the best way to change this is to make the vast informational resources of the Museum's Library and Research Center available to art historians, scholars and students all over the country by participating, along with other fine museum libraries, in the computerized Research Libraries Information Network.

To help you raise the $107,000 necessary to take this next critical step forward, I'm enclosing my most generous gift of:

☐ $50 ☐ $75 ☐ $100 ☐ Other $ _____

Please make your tax-deductible check payable to The National Museum of Women in the Arts and return with this special Charter Member Reply Form to: The National Museum of Women in the Arts, P.O. Box 96049, Washington, D.C. 20090-7460.

Dear Jean,

A belated and enthusiastic thank you for forwarding copies of the Robinson Jeffers Newsletter to us. Both were absolutely fascinating. Congratulations on such a fine job. I forwarded your publications to the head of the Upper School for their use.

It was so good of you to consider Holton and include them as your work progresses.

Please let us know when you publish more - we are always glad to hear from you.

Miss Lurton in 1950

Sallie Evans Lurton

1906-1989

Class of 1923

English Teacher, 1927-1969

Headmistress, 1947-1969

Sallie Evans Lurton, who died December 30, 1989, at the age of 83, came to Holton-Arms as an undergraduate in 1915 and stayed at the School (not counting the four years that she studied at Vassar) until her retirement in 1969. Her great-niece, Sallie Lurton, is a member of Holton's Class of 1991.

The remarks that follow were made at Miss Lurton's memorial service on January 9, 1990. The service also included a performance of the anthem "Let There Be Peace" by the Holton-Arms Swing Choir, and ended with the Holton-Arms Alma Mater.

A Remembrance

MARY JANE PUCKETT
ASSISTANT HEAD
HOLTON-ARMS 1966-PRESENT

Sallie Evans Lurton was born in Nashville, Tennessee. She moved to Washington when she was four years old. Her Southern roots and her love for her family were apparent to all of us who had the good fortune to know her and work with her.

Sallie entered The Holton-Arms School when she was ten. She was an exemplary student from the start, especially in English. Her senior year, she wrote an imaginative short story that was published in the literary magazine. It was entitled, "Pegasus in Combat with an Aeroplane."

Sallie was graduated from Holton-Arms in 1923 and went on to Vassar College to study English literature. In the fall after her graduation from college, she had a rigorous interview with Mrs. Holton and began her life-long career as an English teacher in the Upper School.

As a teacher, Sallie Lurton conveyed her deep and abiding love of literature to each of her students. Her enthusiasm for her discipline was contagious. She opened a new world of ideas to them as she challenged them to identify themes, characterizations, and social values. Her vast knowledge led her students to appreciate a wide range of behaviors, humor, and insights. She knew them well—their strengths, their weaknesses, their aspirations. Her genuine interest in each student, coupled with her good nature and delightful sense of humor, strengthened her bonds with her students. She knew each family. She knew their backgrounds and their special interests. She cared deeply for her students.

In 1947, Sallie became an administrator when she was appointed Headmistress of Holton-Arms. She continued to teach her English classes while assuming the very demanding responsibility of running the School. Her colleagues marveled at her energy and work ethic—a 12-hour day was routine for Sallie Lurton. As

*"Wise and temperate, illuminating knowledge with brilliant insight."
—the 1950 Scroll*

Headmistress, she reconstituted the School's educational philosophy and led the Board of Trustees to a stronger governance role as a fiduciary board. She was recognized throughout the United States by heads of schools for her excellent administrative skills. She held offices in all her professional organizations and served as president of the National Association of Principals of Schools for Girls.

Sallie Lurton will long be remembered for her love of literature, her independent mind, and, most of all, her strength of character. Her high standards and her integrity presented a superb model for her students and her teachers to emulate. In Matthew 5:16, the scripture tells us, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Sallie Evans Lurton's light shone bright and clear. It inspired us. We shall not forget her good works.

A Second Remembrance

SALLY COLCLOUGH ALEXANDER
CLASS OF 1951
CHAIR, ENGLISH DEPARTMENT
HOLTON-ARMS 1965-PRESENT

With Miss Lurton's death comes the end of the unbroken line of Holton's original leadership: First there was Mrs. Holton, and for a sadly short time, Miss Arms. And then there were Miss Lurton and Miss Brown, who came to Holton as young teachers under Mrs. Holton: When she became ill, they shared the leadership, Miss Lurton as Headmistress and Miss Brown as President of the School.

When I first entered Holton—it was a row of connected townhouses on S Street, off Dupont Circle—new girls were still taken to meet the bedridden Mrs. Holton (and I was), but Miss Lurton was the Headmistress. The independent school was a much simpler kind of place then, a less complex little world. Heads taught classes, planned the curriculum, and did the college guidance and every other sort of guidance.

Miss Lurton taught English. She was a woman of strong intellect and great dignity, always beautifully groomed, reserved in manner—even cool. She never married; she loved her family, but Holton-Arms was everything to her, 24 hours a day, for most of her adult life. She had a career she loved, and I know it fulfilled her. She belonged to an era in the independent school when respect, admiration, and even affection between teacher/Headmistress and her students did not also mean familiarity. I stood in awe of her, and it was not always comfortable awe. I do not regret that that awe and lack of familiarity is no longer our way—but I do not regret that it was the way then, either.

Once there was a fire in the School (or a fire scare, I don't remember which) in the middle of the night, and everyone was hustled out into S Street. Miss Lurton's mother was visiting at the time. Miss Lurton said to me, many years later, "The thing that most troubled the girls was not the threat of fire, but the clear evidence that I had a mother and wore a nightgown."

When I was a young teacher under Miss Lurton, I always had the feeling that, having taught me, she was looking at me and thinking, "You were always a silly girl; what are you doing in one of my classrooms?"—though she was much too courteous ever to say it.

I remember one parent conference. The student's mother said repeatedly that she did not know if Holton was making her daughter happy. Miss Lurton said, "We should discuss whether Holton-Arms is helping your daughter fulfill her academic potential—that should make her happy." I do not expect that story to endear her memory to you—but it is the way she thought, and I wouldn't for the world sentimentalize her.

On the other hand, I also remember a time when she came into the Faculty Room, which she visited occasionally to find out how many of us were there drinking coffee when we should have been in our classrooms working with students. It was probably February, because we were all complaining about our students. She listened with an unsmiling face, then walked to the door; as she left, she said, "I hope that when I am next here, you will have something nice to say about the girls."

As an English teacher, she loved Shakespeare and Thomas Hardy, loves I shared. She also loved Saint-Exupéry and open windows in the middle of winter—the first love I didn't share then; the second I don't now. But one last reminiscence may endear her memory to you: She usually gave me Cs in English, because she was never deceived that my readiness to talk off the top of my head meant that I had actually done the work.

Sallie Lurton was a great lady in the history of this School.

The Homily

THE REVEREND WILLIAM M. SHAND III
RECTOR, ST. FRANCIS EPISCOPAL CHURCH

It was not my privilege to have known Sallie Lurton. It was my privilege and my pleasure to share with you the words offered this morning by Mary Jane Puckett, and for those words we are all richer.

And if it was not my privilege to have known Sallie Lurton, it was my privilege to have been a teacher. In the days before I went to seminary, I taught history—first in a large public high school, and then as chair of the history department at Heathwood Hall Episcopal School in Columbia, South Carolina. It is not nostalgia that leads me to say that my teaching days are among the happiest and most rewarding of my life. To teach is a vocation of God—a calling to a very special ministry. To give one's life in response to that vocation is faithfulness of the highest order.

No doubt many of you know the lovely story of the memorial to Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of St. Paul's Cathedral, London—a splendid edifice indeed. It is said that his son wrote this memorial inscription for display in the cathedral. I shall not attempt to repeat the original text, for it is in Latin (and there has long been a dispute over the proper pronunciation of Latin between academicians and those of the Church!). In English, that text is rendered thus: "If you seek for a monument, gaze around."

How sublime, and how true for a teacher. For not in the words of the preacher, nor in the heartfelt tributes of peers and friends, nor in the formal resolutions of trustees or faculties or alumnae, would be found the fitting tribute to Sallie Lurton. No, you must gaze around. You must gaze at the lives of the procession of students whose minds were enriched, whose characters were directed, whose talents were discovered and challenged and nurtured. For it is there, in those lives, that the true tribute is to be found. It is a tribute that endures long after all our words are forgotten, just as yesterday's lesson is erased from the chalkboard.

When God calls someone to the vocation of teacher, God calls that person to a high responsibility. God calls that person to a life of reward, of challenge, of frustration, and even of occasional disappointment. But most importantly, God calls that person to a life of service to others in the world that God made.

So very important does God consider the vocation of teacher that when God chose to enter human history and come among us as the Word Incarnate, God came as a teacher. Forget all that gentle notion of Jesus as a carpenter: Jesus was among us as one who taught, the supreme paradigm of the vocation of teacher. All who teach—especially all who teach well—follow in His example.

This day we give thanks for one who responded to that vocation. We give thanks for her faithfulness to this high and holy vocation. And we give thanks for all that she did and all that she was for this School she loved and served. Amen.

Due to illness during the past winter I was unable to reply to your request for slides and - or - photos of work to be included in the Spring Alumnae Art Exhibition.

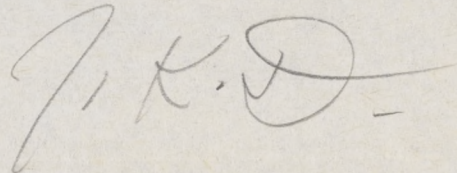

However, if you would like to have me send you a 16" X 20" drypoint for the exhibit (which you could also retain for your permanent collection) I should be most happy to do so.

By way of reference, you will find in the rare book section of your library a copy of the LOVING SHEPHERDESS by Robinson Jeffers, with illustrated with nine of my original etchings.

The subject of the drypoint (black and white) is RELIGION, as documented by a young man in the jungles of Ceylon. Something I witnessed.

Kindly let me know if you would like me to send you the print.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Consolvo:

Thank you for your recent letter regarding the Alumnae Exhibition. Under separate cover I am sending the drypoint I promised you. The subject is explained on the reverse of the print.

Herewith, the other items you requested-- with apologies for weak Xerox of whereabouts of my work. The photograph was taken at my home in the Carmel Highlands in 1952.

I must say that I credit Holton for giving me a "head start", for when I went up to the Yale Art School after my graduation in Washington, I had the cushion of a pretty good academic record. As you may know, my father, Dr. Vernon Lyman Kellogg, was a member of the Academy of Sciences and Permanent Executive Secretary of the National Research Council; while my mother Charlotte Hoffman Kellogg was a poet and humanitarian.

The Jeffers volume THE LOVING SHEPHERDESS with nine of my original etchings in your rare book library is also in the library of the National Museum of Women in the Arts in Washington D.C.

I wish you the greatest success with your exhibition and only wish that I could be on hand to see it all-- and the new school.

Sincerely, and with best wishes,

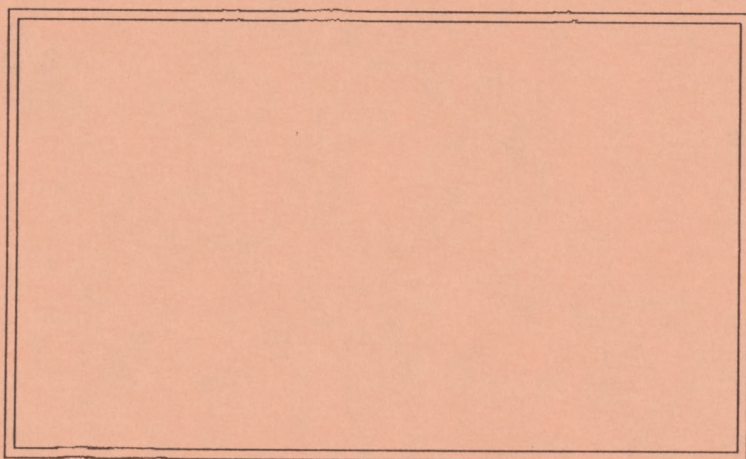

(Mrs. James Dickie)
